

Philosophy Department Learning Goals

Louis deRosset, Associate Professor and Chair

January 15, 2016

Graduating philosophy majors should be able to:

1. read philosophical writing closely, discerning the structure of philosophical argumentation;
2. accurately and critically analyze arguments and positions; and
3. write clear and coherent philosophical prose.