

What's your household energy footprint?

COME TO THE WEEKEND
HAVING DONE THIS!

Let's start thinking about how all of us can address climate change. How much energy do you and your family use? Where could you make changes?

Every person (students, staff, directors) coming to the institute needs to bring this assignment with them. Students, talk to your parents and get this information. Learn more about what it takes for your family to keep warm, keep the lights on, and get around. By the end of the weekend, you'll be coming home with ways in which to save your family money and save the planet.

Here's what to do. Read your footprint. Get the information you need. Get on-line. Fill in the ALL the boxes. Add pictures of you, your family, your cars, and the means by which you heat your house. Have fun with this. Color it in. Make doodles. Add your favorite sayings. Add pictures. Use the footprint to tell everyone more about yourself and your family and your vision for the world that you want to live in.

You can laminate your footprint if you wish but just make sure it comes with you to the Winter Institute.
