Living/Learning Center Mission Statement

The Living/Learning Center, which opened in 1973, is an academic resource whose mission is to create an environment for students to integrate their academic/artistic studies and their residential experiences, and to provide a venue for faculty and students to interact outside of the classroom. The Center encourages faculty, staff, and student programs that foster innovative and interdisciplinary learning experiences that bring the intellectual life of the University in close alliance with the students' lives outside the classroom. The Center provides a unique environment for faculty, staff, and students in each of the University schools and colleges to offer particular curricular elements in an atmosphere that fosters broad opportunities for intellectual discourse.

To Achieve our Mission, Living/Learning:

- Supports innovative, residentially-based educational programs. The focus of the Living/Learning Center are the 40 academic programs, each of which is a year-long plan of course work, independent study, seminars, field trips and other special activities which support a specific program theme. A selection of recent programs includes: Africa House, Exploring Culture through Tea, Clay: Pottery, Sculpture and..., Community Connections, and Caribbean House. Programs are designed and directed by students, staff or faculty members and reflect the educational interests of the program leaders and participants.
- Connects students with faculty and staff. The physical design of the Living/Learning Center facilitates educational and social interactions between all members of the university community. The year-long courses of study include activities that bring students and faculty together outside of the classroom.
- Provides students with an opportunity to take responsibility for part of their education. Student-designed programs provide the opportunity for students to design a year-long set of activities in an area of interest, for example, Theater, Film Studies or Outdoor Education. Student program directors are provided with leadership training to help them make the most of their experience. Students may also sign up for a one-credit Leadership Seminar taught by Center staff as part of their program director experience.
- Exposes students to the performing and creative arts. Through the efforts and expertise of accomplished staff artists, the Center offers pottery and photography studios that provide the Living/Learning community, as well as all members of the University and Burlington communities, with the opportunity for informal instruction, access to the facilities and equipment, and the opportunity for public display in the Center's gallery/exhibit space.
- Provides a facility that supports students' educational, social and recreational needs. In addition to faculty and administrative offices, classrooms and faculty apartments, the Center also has a reading room/reference library (the George D. Aiken Reading Room), as well as a computer lab, art gallery, full-functioning mailroom, two dining options (Alice's Café and The University Marché), and central commons area.

ACCESS OFFICE

The ACCESS Office, located in room A170, works closely with students with all types of documented disabilities, securing solutions to assist with access issues encountered in courses, programs or activities. ## Create your own Living/Learning Center Program for 2010-2011!

Each year the Living/Learning Center Director's Office solicits proposals for new and continuing programs from UVM students, faculty and staff. Proposals that are accepted receive space, a budget, and support from the L/L Director's Office. Program proposal information will be available by early November. Contact the L/L Director's Office for more information: 656-4200 or Living.Learning@uvm.edu.
