Links_extra pages

Now that all of our websites have been converted to RWD (Responsive Web Design), any sidebar that you have on your site will be in their own separate page in the Z: drive.

- These pages will be called links_extra-pagename (for example, if the page with the sidebar is the about page, than the name would be links_extra-about)

make sure that the word after extra- is the exact same name as the page it’s linking to

These link pages match up with the contact.html page, the publications.html page & so on.

- Since the sidebars have their own pages created for them in our HTML editor, you will no longer have that information listed on the actual webpage you’re editing—if you want to edit a sidebar, you’ll have to find links_extra with the same page name you’re working on.
