Supporting the Mission
The Fiscal Year 2011 Philanthropic Report

Philanthropic support for the College of Medicine remained strong in fiscal year 2011, and, in seeing the thousands of names listed in the following pages, we are inspired by how passionately our supporters feel about the work done here each day. The success of our students and faculty, and the contributions they’ve made in this past year, are in great part due to the financial support that so many people and organizations dedicate to this school each year.

As financial support from the state of Vermont and the federal government remain steady or decline, the UVM College of Medicine increasingly recognizes the significant impact that philanthropy has for the students, faculty, patients and community that we serve.

In 2011 we saw tremendous support for students including the establishment of multiple endowed scholarships including the C.V. Starr Foundation Medical Scholarship, the Sumner J. Yaffe, M.D.’54 Scholarship, and the Roger S. Colton, M.D.’58 Scholarship — each representing support, respectively, from private foundations, alumni and the community. We also saw steadfast annual support for students from alumni and friends — such as the support of Helen and Robert Larner, M.D.’42, and Paul Rutkowski, M.D.’63, who have for many years demonstrated significant commitment to the support of students and continue to inspire others to give — including students themselves. Scholarship support is vital to our mission in addressing the rising indebtedness of medical students and enabling us to continue to recruit the absolute best students to train here in Vermont and to send out into the world to practice.

Research support also remains a top priority at the College of Medicine, and in 2011 we saw the continued commitment of donors to research. Long-time supporters such as the Totman Medical Research Trust, the Lake Champlain Cancer Research Organization and the S.D. Ireland Foundation, along with many other individuals and organizations, continue to provide sustaining support to internationally recognized research programs at the UVM College of Medicine. As we look to invest in the already successful research programs here at UVM, philanthropy will play a significant role in building on this excellence and creating programs that will transform biomedical research here and around the world.

Millicent Percy
Barry Finette, M.D., Ph.D., professor of pediatrics and associate professor of microbiology and molecular genetics, (above) carries on his pediatric cancer research thanks in part to the generous support of the late Millicent Percy. Ms. Percy never met the many children who, today and in the years to come, will benefit from her help, but her generosity is helping to yield new knowledge in the fight against their pediatric cancers. Upon her death in 2010, Ms. Percy left a bequest to fund leukemia research at the University of Vermont, in honor of her brother-in-law, the late Herbert Bowen Comings, who received his undergraduate degree from UVM in 1945.
The College is grateful to the following faculty and staff who have made financial contributions to support the College and its missions.

Shirley and Robert Johnson, M.D.
Shirley and Robert Johnson, M.D., arrived in Vermont in 1971, when Dr. Johnson accepted an appointment as assistant professor of orthopaedic surgery in the College of Medicine. More than 40 years later, as professor emeritus of orthopaedic surgery, he still teaches, treats patients, and carries out research in the McClure Musculoskeletal Research Center at UVM, where he held the McClure Professorship from 1994 to 2005. Sports medicine has always been his passion, Dr. Johnson says, since he began treating injured athletes as a young physician.

Now, the Johnsons are honoring that life’s work with a gift to support research in sports medicine in the Department of Orthopaedics and Rehabilitation, through an irrevocable life insurance trust (ILIT) naming UVM one of the beneficiaries of a $1 million life insurance policy. “Sports medicine is a field I’ve committed my academic and professional career to,” says Dr. Johnson, “and this is a way to support the research I’ve been interested in after I’m gone.” Currently, that research focuses primarily on ski injury epidemiology and prevention, he says, including risk factors in anterior cruciate ligament (ACL) injury and the development of arthritis after injury and reconstruction.

The couple structured their gift with the guidance of their financial advisor, Tony Hall, CFF, ChFC, of Hall Financial Services. He says the ILIT is a good option for many people considering a philanthropic gift. “Through the leverage of life insurance it makes it possible to make a major gift without compromising other assets in the estate,” he says. “The Johnsons personify the Latin phrase non sibi, which means ‘not for self.’”

The Panitch Fund

The colleagues and friends of Professor of Neurology Hillel “Hill” Panitch, M.D. — those in Vermont, and others from around the country — joined together in 2011 to support the Panitch Fund for Neurotherapeutic Research and Education. This fund honors the memory and lifelong work of Dr. Panitch, who died in December 2010, just a year after being diagnosed with late-stage melanoma. Since coming to UVM in 2000, Dr. Panitch founded UVM’s Multiple Sclerosis Center, and brought his special quality of knowledgeable, kind treatment and leading-edge research and treatments to patients across the region. The Panitch Fund will continue the legacy of a brilliant and caring physician for years to come.

Profile in Giving

The Pasanen Family Bridge

Some families share a deep connection with the College of Medicine that stretches across generations. The Pasanen family is a prime example: Wayne Pasanen, M.D.’71, an emergency medicine physician from Massachusetts, has long been an ardent supporter of his medical alma mater, and is joined by his son, Mark Pasanen, M.D.’92, a Burlington, Vt. primary care physician, associate professor of medicine at the College, and Medical Alumni Association president-elect. The Pasanens’ longstanding philanthropic support is reflected in the naming of a bridge in the Courtyard at Given, the College’s newest structure that sits at the center of daily life at the school.

Waldron Fund Lecture Spreads the Word on Cancer Treatment

When Vermonters Donna and Marty Waldron’s son, Sean, passed away from acute myelogenous leukemia in 1992 at 21 years of age, the couple wanted to do something meaningful to support those who cared for Sean, and to help other cancer patients as well. They started a fund in Sean’s memory to support hematologic malignancy research at the Vermont Cancer Center (VCC), under the direction of Associate Professor of Medicine Barbara Grant, M.D., who had been Sean’s oncologist, and to whom the Waldrons feel very grateful.

The Vermont Cancer Center (VCC) at the University of Vermont and Fletcher Allen Health Care presented the first Waldron Lecture in October 2011. Judith Karp, M.D., professor of oncology and medicine and director of the Leukemia Program at the Johns Hopkins Sidney Kimmel Comprehensive Cancer Center, discussed “Harnessing Cell Cycle and Repair Pathways in the Investigation and Treatment of Blood Cancers” with physicians and other cancer caregivers from across the academic medical center. (The Waldrons are seen in the above after-lecture photo with Dr. Karp at center.)

The Sean Patrick Waldron Lymphoma & Hematologic Malignancy Fund has steadily grown, thanks to the generosity of the family and friends in the community. Now, in addition to directly helping improve research, they are regularly spreading new and improved knowledge to help improve the care of cancer patients today.
