University Operating Procedure

Electronic Student Notification

Procedures

University Use of Email

Email shall be considered the primary and official mechanism for delivering official communications from the University of Vermont to all students and admitted applicants. This does not preclude administrative offices from supplementing official electronic University communications with notification in hard-copy.

Faculty members retain autonomy in determining how email or other forms of electronic communication will be used in their classes, but must specify student requirements in their course syllabus.

The University has the right to send such communications to students via their official University email address, and the right to expect those communications will be received and read in a timely fashion.

If a full inbox or the unmonitored use of a “spam” filter causes messages to be undeliverable, these message will be considered delivered and further action will not be required of the University. The University assumes no responsibility for any messages not received or read by students.

Activation of Student Email Accounts

All full-time and part-time students registered at UVM, as well as enrolled applicants, are assigned an official University email address. It is the responsibility of every eligible student to activate his or her own UVM email account. Account activation automatically establishes the student’s official email address in the UVM.edu domain in University records. University email communications are sent to this email address.

Students who choose to have their UVM email account forwarded to a private, unofficial email address (e.g. Hotmail.com, yahoo.com, gmail.com, etc.) that is outside the University network address (uvm.edu) do so at their own risk. The University is not responsible for any difficulties that may occur in the proper or timely transmission or access to email forwarded to any unofficial email address.

Definitions

University (UVM) Email Address: is an email account within the uvm.edu domain but not including departmentally-operated subdomains.

Official University Communications: may be addressed from an administrative unit or official of the University to a group or a single student, and contain information that students must have in order to conduct business with the University and for which they will be held accountable.
