Bipasha Baruah
Canada Research Chair in Global Women’s Issues
University of Western Ontario

WOMEN AND WORK
IN A WARMING WORLD

Dr. Baruah’s research is interdisciplinary in nature and focuses on the various factors that affect women’s ability to own property and to participate in the emerging green economy. Among her publications are several articles on microfinance, gender and poverty alleviation strategies, public-private partnerships, and the informal sector, as well as the book Women and Property in Urban India.

October 12, 2015
3:30 pm – 4:45 pm
Livak Ballroom, Dudley H. Davis Center

Reception immediately following the lecture in the Livak Ballroom

Hosted by the Global and Regional Studies Program, Department of Geography, Gender, Sexuality and Women’s Studies Program, Community Development and Applied Economics, Rubenstein School of Environment and Natural Resources, and the School of Business Administration

For more information contact Pablo Bose, pbose@uvm.edu

To request ADA accommodations such as interpreting please contact Conference and Events Services at conferences@uvm.edu or 802-656-5665 in advance of the event.