CDCI envisions a future where all people, including people who experience developmental and other disabilities, are fully included in their home, schools, and communities in a meaningful way.

We envision a future in which supports and services that lead to interdependence, self-determination, and inclusion are available to all people across the span of life.

We provided both undergraduate and graduate programs, continuing education classes, community training, and technical assistance to a total of 9,321 participants during this past year.

CDCI operated 29 projects this year, enhancing services for people with disabilities and their families, from early childhood through adulthood.

We developed and disseminated 120 publications and electronic materials this year, sharing the latest information and resources in the field of developmental disabilities.
