Course: Introduction to Technology for Living and Learning (EDSP 200)

Description: This course provides an introduction to technologies useful in the general education classroom and beyond. Foundational principles guiding decisions about technology will be explored. Basic knowledge about disabilities and different abilities will be gained. Technology options, assistive, adaptive and mainstream, and technology decision-making processes will be examined.

When: Thursday 4-6:45pm [Course begins January 22\textsuperscript{nd}, 2015]

Format: “in person” course that is distance accessible; focused on active-learning

Audience: School, health and rehabilitation professionals and those studying to enter the field.

To learn more about the course contact Marie-Christine Potvin (mpotvin@uvm.edu)