Introduction

Welcome to the 8th Edition of the Directory of Grass-Fed Products. We are pleased to offer this updated listing of VGFA farmer members with grass-fed and sustainably-grown products for sale. In addition to meats, milk, and fiber, we also list whether farms are open to visitors, and additional products such as maple syrup, compost, and handcrafts. You may search for farms alphabetically, by county, and by product.

The Vermont Grass Farmers’ Association (VGFA) is a group of farmers and neighbors growing the vitality of grass-based farming in Vermont. With an ever-expanding membership of folks from Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New York, Connecticut, and beyond, the VGFA strives to increase the economic viability of livestock farming through the promotion of responsible, rotational livestock grazing techniques.

VGFA is a farmer-initiated and farmer-run organization, and to be effective, it needs your voice to help direct, promote, and inform its work.

Please consider supporting the VGFA through a family or farm membership. In return for the $40 annual fee, members may list products in this directory, receive the quarterly Solar Dollar newsletter, attend the Vermont Grazing Conference at the member rate, receive additional discounts to pasture walks, workshops, and special events, and maintain a voting voice in an organization dedicated to grass-based farming.

A Word About Production Methods

Each farm listed in this directory received the same set of general descriptions outlining common language for production methods. It is under the honor system that farms self-describe their production. VGFA and VPN are not certifiers, and we recommend that the best way to understand farming practices, and verify that you are comfortable buying food from any farm, is to contact farmers directly and get to know them!

The Vermont Pasture Network

The Vermont Pasture Network (VPN) is a special collaboration among the VT Grass Farmers Association, the UVM Center for Sustainable Agriculture’s Pasture Program, and the USDA-NRCS Grazing Lands Conservation Initiative (GLCI). These partners work closely to listen to livestock farmers’ needs, coordinate events, provide technical assistance and test grazing policy. Through this collaboration, grazing farmers have direct voices to help guide grazing priorities and activities in VT and throughout the northeast. While the three entities mentioned above have a formal relationship, the network thrives on partnerships with other organizations, such as Northeast Organic Farming Association of VT, VT Sheep and Goat Association, VT Beef Producers’ Association, VT Agency of Agriculture, UVM Extension, Rural Vermont, Highfields Center for Composting, Northeast Pasture Consortium, and many more supportive individuals and organizations. For more information, see www.uvm.edu/pasture.

Why Should We Buy Grass-Fed Products?
Many consumers are frustrated by the quality, health effects, taste, and geographic origin of food available in supermarkets. Food often travels thousands of miles to arrive on the dinner plate. When it does, it may be tasteless, processed, and unhealthy. Farm “owners” and farm laborers are poorly paid, and often mistreated by the large corporations with whom they are contracted to produce items ranging from strawberries to pork.

The farmers listed in this directory would like to offer you, the consumer, a new choice.

Why Grass Fed?
Animals raised in grass-based systems provide many benefits:

- Clean air, green land, and reduced water pollution
- Reduced (often removed) need for antibiotics or medications as a result of healthier, lower stress animals with access to their natural habits
- Growing numbers of independent farmers and community support
- Increased opportunities for family farms, fairly paid for their products
- Food with greater nutritional value

Why is Grass Fed Healthier?
(excerpted from http://www.eatwild.com/healthbenefits.htm)

- Meat from grass-fed animals has two to four times more omega-3 fatty acids than meat from grain-fed animals. Omega-3s are called “good fats” because they play a vital role in every cell and system in your body. People who have ample amounts of omega-3s in their diet are less likely to have high blood pressure or an irregular heartbeat. Remarkably, they are 50 percent less likely to suffer a heart attack.

- Meat from grass-fed beef, sheep and bison is lower in total fat. Research shows that lean beef can actually lower your LDL “bad” cholesterol. Eggs from pastured hens can contain as much as 10 times more omega-3s than eggs from factory hens.

- People with a diet rich in omega-3s are less likely to suffer from depression, schizophrenia, attention deficit disorder (hyperactivity), or Alzheimer’s disease. Animal studies show they may slow the growth of cancer.

- Meat and dairy products from grass-fed ruminants are the richest known source of another type of good fat called “conjugated linoleic acid” or CLA. When ruminants are raised on fresh pasture alone, their products contain from three to five times more CLA than products from animals fed conventional diets. CLA may be one of our most potent defenses against cancer.

To learn more about studies involving the many health benefits of grass-fed products, we encourage you visit the web sites www.eatwild.com and www.price-pottenger.org.

Introducing the Jon Rutter Memorial Fund

Jonathan Rutter of Bridport, VT was a lifelong dairy farmer and a unique spirit. Through Journey’s Hope farm, Jon and his wife Beverly expressed their passions, vision and community spirit which included a tradition of sharing and encouraging learning at all levels. One of the founding members of the Vermont Grass Farmers Association in 1996, Jon long credited his financial success and quality of life to the use of management-intensive grazing his 300+ cows. Jon was always generous with his time to help young and beginning farmers establish themselves, and his land for furthering grass-based research projects.

Jon’s passing in March 2010 stirred a variety of emotions: sadness at the loss of one of Vermont’s treasures, frustration that the best of us are sometimes taken too soon, and a powerful motivation to create a long-lasting memorial in Jon’s name focused on a sustainable future for Vermont’s livestock farmers through grass-based farming.

The Vermont Grass Farmers Association (VGFA) is honored to have been asked to develop, guide, grow and administer this fund in Jon’s memory. To initiate an endowment, VGFA has voted to direct $7,000 in savings be held for the fund. We are currently seeking additional contributions to the endowment, with the intention that interest earned from the fund will be used to continue the mentoring and technical assistance Jon felt so critical to the success of beginning and experienced grass farmers.

Goals of the Fund:
- Increase the knowledge base of grazing farmers and encourage innovation on grazing farms
- Encourage the expansion of new and beginning grass-based livestock farmers
- Create a longer-term funding source to promote grass-based livestock farming into the future

Donations in any amount can be made directly to the VGFA P.O. Box 142 Randolph Center, VT 05061

Thank you for joining with us to support the establishment of this enduring gift!
