Since 1973, Living/Learning Programs have been the original residential learning communities at UVM. A key feature of Living/Learning Programs is that they are largely developed by students, for students! Each year students submit proposals to create programs based upon their interests. Living/Learning provides leadership training and support to students who lead these programs. Program offerings change a bit from year-to-year, but typically students can choose from 20 different L/L programs. Students in an L/L program share a common interest and participate in a variety of activities like guest lectures, field trips, community service projects, program dinners, films and social and cultural gatherings.

Overviews of all Living/Learning Programs can be found on the L/L Programs Website:
