

Abstract

We classify (possibly noncommutative) algebras of low rank over a domain R . We first review results for algebras of rank 2 and for finite-dimensional division algebras over \mathbb{R} . These results motivate us to consider which algebras possess a standard involution. Our main result is that algebras of rank 3 are either commutative or possess a standard involution.