Bus Drivers and DUI Policy

The following report will begin by examining federal and state statutes pertaining to commercial drivers license (“CDL”) suspension periods for bus drivers convicted of driving under the influence (“DUI”). The report will then look at DUI policies set forth by private bus companies in Vermont. The report concludes by looking at state expungement statutes for persons convicted of a DUI with a CDL.

Federal Statutes

The Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration (FMCSA) enacted the 1999 Motor Carrier Safety Improvement Act (MCSIA), which set a minimum one-year suspension period for individuals with commercial driver’s licenses (CDLs) who are found operating a commercial motor vehicle (CMV) with a blood alcohol concentration (BAC) of 0.04 or greater.¹ According to the MCSIA, driving a CMV while under the influence of alcohol means committing any one or more of the following acts:

- (a) Driving a CMV while the person’s alcohol concentration is 0.04 or more; (b) Driving under the influence of alcohol, as prescribed by State law; or (c) Refusal to undergo such testing as is required by any State or jurisdiction in the enforcement of § 383.51(b) or § 392.5(a)(2).²

However, the FMCSA only has the authority to establish a minimum alcohol concentration (0.04%) disqualification standard for CDL drivers.³ Individual states can impose more stringent standards, including establishing a lower alcohol concentration, for both CDL and non-CDL drivers licensed by their State.⁴

Vermont Statutes

The Vermont Commercial Driver License Act (CDLA) says, “(a) A person shall be disqualified from driving a commercial motor vehicle for a period of one year if convicted of a first violation of: (1) operating, attempting to operate, or being in actual control of a commercial motor vehicle on a highway with an alcohol concentration of 0.04 or more,” within the past two years, from obtaining a school bus endorsement.⁵

Private Companies in Vermont

Vermont requires that, “during the two-year period immediately prior to applying for school bus endorsement, the applicant: (C.) Has not been convicted of any offense that would require disqualification under section 4116 of this title...”⁶ Section 4116 states, “A person shall be disqualified from driving a commercial motor vehicle for a period of one year if convicted of a first violation of: (1) operating, attempting to operate or being in actual physical control of a motor vehicle with an alcohol concentration of 0.04% or more.”⁷

Most of the bus companies we contacted required background checks to go back farther than two years. For example, Bet-Cha Transit in Middlebury said, “if you have ever had a DUI at any point in your lifetime, we are unable to hire you. If you are convicted during your employment, it will result in immediate termination of employment.”⁸ Grand Avenue Enterprises Inc. in Swanton, explained that their “insurance company won’t cover drivers who have been convicted of DUI.”⁹ Mountain Transit Inc. in Milton conducts “a ten year criminal background check and people are not hired if they have been convicted of a DUI. To be considered for employment, a DUI conviction must be at least fifteen years

State Expungement Statutes

The subsequent section highlights DUI expungement policies enacted by several states. Expungement policies vary by state. Kansas, for example, does not allow expungement.¹² First offenders convicted of DUI in Rhode Island, however, are given option to file expungement.¹³ Ultimately, DUI expungement statutes are subject to the way individual states classify DUI offenses.¹⁴

Arizona

Arizona offers expungement to “any person who is wrongfully arrested, indicted or otherwise for any crime.”¹⁵ A person must petition the court for expungement of certain records, upon which a judge will hear that person’s case. “If the judge believes that justice will be served by such entry, the judge shall issue the order requiring the entry that the person has been cleared on such records.”¹⁶ Furthermore, the expungement ruling “requires that all law enforcement agencies and courts shall not release copies of or provide access to such records to any person except on order of the court.”¹⁷

Connecticut

In Connecticut “upon the first DUI conviction, a school bus driver is disqualified from driving any commercial vehicle for a year and his or her S endorsement is suspended for five years.”¹⁸ Commercial drivers convicted of DUI are not eligible for Connecticut’s Pretrial Alcohol Education Program (PAEP), which allows first time DUI offenders, upon completion of the program, request their DUI charge to be dismissed.¹⁹ A second DUI conviction results in a lifetime suspension from holding a CDL, with the possibility of reinstatement after a clean record of ten years and the completion of necessary rehabilitation programs.²⁰ A third conviction results in the permanent lifetime CDL suspension without the possibility for reinstatement.²¹

Indiana

In Indiana “it is illegal to operate a CMV if your BAC is .04 percent or more. If you operate a CMV, you shall be deemed to have given your consent to alcohol testing.”²² Drivers will lose their CDL for one year if they operate a CMV with a BAC of .04 percent or more, for a first offense.²³ Subsequent offenses result in a loss of the driver’s CDL for life.²⁴ The Indiana Codes allow for expungement of a DUI, a class C misdemeanor,²⁵ “five years after the date of conviction.”²⁶

Kansas

(2) The alcohol concentration in the person’s blood or breath, as measured within three hours of the time of driving a commercial motor vehicle, is .04 or more.”²⁸

Missouri

Effective in January 2017, Missouri's Revised Statutes will allow for expungement of a DUI conviction from an individual's record "after a period of not less than ten years."²⁹ Upon expungement, the records pertaining to the individual will be made confidential, "and only available to the parties or by order of the court for good cause shown."³⁰ However, drivers with a CDL are not eligible to apply for expungement.³¹

Rhode Island

Rhode Island provides first offenders the opportunity to file expungement motions for felonies and misdemeanors.³² Rhode Island allows expungement for any misdemeanor or felony, for a first time offense; expungement motions can be filed 5 years after the conviction of a misdemeanor and 10 years after a felony, respectively after the completion of the related sentence.³³

South Dakota

In South Dakota, expungement is defined as "the sealing of all records on file within any court, detention or correctional facility, law enforcement agency, criminal justice agency, or Department of Public Safety concerning a person's detection, apprehension, arrest, detention, trial or disposition of an offense within the criminal justice system."³⁴ The arrested person may apply for expungement (of the record of arrest):

- (1) After one year from the date of any arrest if no accusatory instrument was filed;
- (2) With the consent of the prosecuting attorney at any time after the prosecuting

attorney formally dismisses the entire criminal case on the record; or (3) At any time after an acquittal.³⁵

Tennessee

Four or more DUI offenses, in Tennessee, are categorized as a Class E Felony, while lesser offenses are considered a misdemeanor.³⁶ If there was a conviction for a misdemeanor or Class E Felony, the charge or charges may be eligible for expungement.³⁷ Once an expungement is completed, the Tennessee Bureau of Investigation (“TBI”) will erase all charges from a criminal record, meaning the record will not be sealed.³⁸ However, it is still possible for convictions to appear on background checks run by private companies.³⁹

Utah

Effective March 13, 2014, Utah no longer allows for the expungement of felony DUI convictions.⁴⁰ First and second DUI offenses over a period of ten years are considered misdemeanors, while three or more offenses over that same period are considered felonies.⁴¹

Conclusion

Although Vermont statutes prevent individuals convicted of DUIs within the past two years from obtaining a bus endorsement⁴² many private companies have stricter policies regarding hiring people who have been convicted of DUI. For example, Mountain Transit Incorporated conducts “a ten year criminal background check and people are not hired if they have been convicted of a DUI. To be considered for employment, a DUI conviction must be at least fifteen years old.”⁴³ The aforementioned states have enacted statutes
