AIDS is not a gay disease. However, the majority of people with AIDS in the U.S. are gay men, a fact that has serious implications for the gay and lesbian community.
In this presentation, panelists will draw on their own experiences as people whose lives have been changed by AIDS. They are confronting it on nearly every level: surviving the loss of loved ones, dealing with their own HIV status, facing intense discrimination, confronting bigotry, and being political activists. Their personal stories will be followed by a dialogue with audience members.
