

Postpartum women with preeclampsia and their offspring have an increased risk of ischemic stroke

Image showing how postpartum women with preeclampsia and their offspring have increased risk of ischemic stroke. Several pictures link together to show how cerebrovascular dysfunction in preeclampsia affects stroke severity and the proposed use of aspirin to ameliorate symptomology.