CURRICULUM DEVELOPMENT IN THE ANTHROPOLOGY OF GLOBAL HEALTH

• Global Health Focus in Anthropology and Concentration in Anthropology of Global Health: Developed and launched the Global Health Focus track in the Anthropology Major (11 courses) and the Anthropology Minor (6 courses) in April 2015 at the recommendation of our external reviewers for department APR review. By the end of 2016, we had 11 majors and 8 minors with a global health focus, and of these, 4 majors and 1 minor will graduate in spring 2017, with one already accepted to UVM's MPH program. In Spring 2017 we launched a formal major concentration in the Anthropology of Global Health, which had 26 declared students as of Fall 2018. We also have a number of Anthropology Minors following a global health focus track. I advise these and other students with an interest in global health via a listserv of 150+ students and alums, plus individual communications and occasional group gatherings. Maintained Global Health part of Anthropology website with Comm Team of Charlotte Malling, Lauren Rigney, Adriana Grinder, and Erin Varnum in 2018-19 and with the latter three in 2019-2020. In Spring 2019 we had 25 students, in Fall 2019 we had 17 students, and in Spring 2020 we had 24 students in the Global Health Concentration in the Anthropology Major. The concentration is part of the BA and BS in Anthropology. There are fewer students in the Global Health Concentration in Anthropology (9 in March 2025) since the Health and Society program I direct has become more popular, with students often taking our Anthropology of Global Health courses as part of their major or minor in Health and Society.

• Course Development: Over the years, I have developed the following new courses in medical anthropology (see above for titles): Anth 089, Anth 173, Anth 174, Anth 189, and Anth 288. I have also done a thorough rehaul of the design and content of Anth 172 and Anth 180. In 2018 I taught Introduction to Global Health in rotation with Prof. Maltby in CNHS. All these courses are D2 offerings. Anth 089 is an SU course as well. Prof. Blom and I revamped Anth 172 to include race. In Fall 2020, I revised two courses (Anth 089 and Anth 174) for remote teaching and learning. In Spring 2024, I revised ANTH 2181 from 14-week asynchronous to 4-week asynchronous. In Spring 2025, I revised ANTH 2181 from asynchronous to 14-week in-person synchronous course.

CURRICULUM DEVELOPMENT IN HEALTH AND SOCIETY PROGRAM

•Health and Society Program, Major and Minor: Developed the Health and Society (HSOC) Program, Major, and Minor in collaboration with the cross-college Health and Society Curriculum Committee, CAS Sociology Professor Dale Jaffe, and CAS Associate Dean Abigail McGowan in 2017, which was approved in February 2018 and launched in Fall 2018. Developed the website and listserv for the program in collaboration with CAS Communications Director Kevin Coburn and Research Assistant Charlotte Malling in Spring 2018. Maintained website in Fall 2018 with Comm Team of Charlotte Malling, Madison Shaffer, and Lindsay Aldrich and in Fall 2019 with Lindsay Aldrich and Julia Carlson. In subsequent years, maintained website with other interns including Paola Mena Henry and IT Specialist Beth Wilkins. Most recently, I have been working with DCIP interns Liv Teare and Elineth Varela, and CAS Communications Team leader Su Reid-St. John and CAS web specialist Suman Thapa. As of March 2023, the program had 120 majors and 100 minors. In March 2025, the program has 83 majors and 94 minors, following plans for an accredited Public Health B.A. option CAS students can take through CNHS.

ADVISING AND MENTORING

ACADEMIC ADVISING RESPONSIBILITIES AT UVM

•Recent Undergraduate Advising: Health and Society majors and minors (25+ students in recent years, 85+ students in earlier years), Anthropology majors and minors and global health concentrators (10 students) and others, 2019-spring 2022. Anthropology majors and minors and global health concentrators (17 students) and focusers therein, and Health and Society majors (64 students) and minors (30 students), 2018-2019.

•Historical Undergraduate Advising: Over the decades, I have advised hundreds of Anthropology Majors, scores of Asian Studies Majors and Minors, and many Global/Public Health IDMs, 1998-present.
