

2026 NYU/Bellevue Emergency Medicine Summer Medical Student Fellowship Pathways in Emergency Medicine: Access, Community, and Academic Excellence

APPLICATION DEADLINE EXTENDED!!

The Ronald O. Perelman Department of Emergency Medicine at the NYU Grossman School of Medicine (NYU Langone Health & Bellevue Hospital Center) is pleased to sponsor the 8th Annual Emergency Medicine Summer Medical Student Fellowship. This four-week program is designed to support early exposure to Emergency Medicine (EM) for motivated pre-clinical medical students and to strengthen pathways into the specialty.

Our mission is to strengthen pathways into Emergency Medicine for students whose lived experiences and backgrounds bring valuable perspectives to patient care. We aim to cultivate a physician workforce prepared to care for diverse patient populations and communities through early exposure, mentorship, and academic enrichment in Emergency Medicine.

We encourage applications from first-year medical students who have demonstrated a commitment to service, community engagement, mentorship, and/or improving access to high-quality medical care, and who are interested in pursuing Emergency Medicine. The fellowship offers five funded positions, which include NYU housing, travel to New York City (up to $600), and a stipend of $1000. All interested individuals are welcome to apply.

Program Opportunities:

Didactic: Fellows will participate in procedure workshops, simulation-based health education sessions, social medicine initiatives, ultrasound workshops, resident conference, journal club, lectures given by our faculty and residents, toxicology rounds, pediatric EM rounds, teaching sessions with high school students, & a Wilderness Medicine outing. Students will also be guided through an introductory asynchronous workbook on how to design, conduct, and interpret Emergency Medicine research.

Clinical: Each student will be paired with an EM faculty preceptor or resident whom they will shadow on shifts. Students will be exposed to tremendous diversity in clinical pathology & patient populations by rotating through the different hospitals within our academic center, including our tertiary care center at NYU Langone Health, the country's 1st public hospital at Bellevue (Level 1 Trauma Center), & NYU Brooklyn (Level 1 Trauma Center).

Important Dates: - DEADLINE EXTENDED!!

Summer Fellowship Dates: June 22nd – July 17th, 2026

Completed Application Deadline: February 20th, 2026 now March 9th, 2026

Notification of Decision to Student: March 6th, 2026 now March 16th, 2026

Student Confirmation of Acceptance: March 13th, 2026 now March 20th, 2026

How to Apply:

Interested students must submit the following materials to EMstudents@nyulangone.org by February 20th, 2026:

1. A current CV
2. A one-page personal statement describing your interest in Emergency Medicine and this fellowship. Please include:
 - o Lived experiences, obstacles, or nontraditional paths that have shaped your journey toward medicine
 - o Challenges related to access, resources, mentorship, or opportunity that influenced your preparation for a medical career
 - o Examples of your commitment to improving access to care, supporting underserved communities, or addressing healthcare disparities through service, advocacy, research, or leadership
3. One letter of recommendation from a faculty member at your medical school

Applicants will be selected using a comprehensive review process that considers academic interests, life experiences, service, leadership, and alignment with the goals of the fellowship.

Please email us for any questions: EMstudents@nyulangone.org or visit our website:

<https://med.nyu.edu/departments-institutes/emergency-medicine/education/training-medical-students>