Student Work

Students make their own choices about what to cover and how, as the Daily Athenaeum is entirely student-run.

Faculty/staff

Madison Fleck-Cook is the program's advisor but works to balance providing guidance and resources while remaining hands-off enough to allow the students to make their own choices about the newspaper's coverage.

Funding sources

The Daily Athenaeum is a student-run newspaper with an additional staff of five. The program sells ads and receives funding from student fees and donors.
