

Patricia A. Prelock Nursing and Health Sciences Research Award

This award recognizes a CNHS faculty member who is actively engaged in mentoring students (undergraduate and/or graduate) in high quality research. Preference is given to researchers who are actively submitting grants and who demonstrate strong research training/mentoring. Qualifying research can include but is not limited to basic, clinical, translational, or public-health related projects. This will be an annual award of $3000. Expenses may include but are not limited to equipment and supplies for student and faculty research; summer student employment in an area of research; travel and/or registration to scientific meetings; and other general research purposes.

Application Deadline: March 31st, 2023. The application materials include an updated CV and a 1-2 page document with the following: 1) research overview; 2) description of qualifications as a mentor (e.g. track record of mentorship); 3) a letter of support from a colleague or mentee that provides evidence of excellence in research mentorship. The quality of the research program, strength of investigator, and track record of engaging students in high quality research will be considered. Applications should be submitted electronically as a single pdf file to the CNHS Research Committee (cnhsresearch@med.uvm.edu). Funds should be used by the end of the following fiscal year (June 30th).
