

Studying abroad offers rich learning and life opportunities and experience. Many ENSC students study abroad in one way or another—either through a UVM faculty-led course, summer, or semester abroad programs. Some students use their study abroad to complete their concentration requirements, taking advantage of the opportunity to take courses and immerse themselves in field work related to their specific disciplinary interests. There are many programs tailored especially for environmental students. Some of the most common programs chosen by our ENSC majors include:
