German history, society, politics, and culture since 1945;
b) the impact of the Cold War on central Europe;
c) the long-lasting effects of the legacy of the Holocaust and the Second World War on German, European, and global politics;
d) the relationship between the legacies of the Holocaust and the Second World War, on the one hand, and the Cold War, on the other;
Beyond conveying knowledge about and stimulating interest in the above mentioned issues, this course seeks to
a) foster students’ ability to read and interpret historical documents (primary sources) and scholarly books and articles (secondary sources);
b) familiarize students with historical reasoning and the use of historical evidence;
c) sharpen students’ research skills through experience with conducting individual research projects;
d) sharpen students’ analytical skills and critical thinking;
e) improve students’ writing skills;
f) improve students’ communication skills.

Required Texts:
Fulbrook, Mary, A History of Germany 1918-2014: The Divided Nation
Grossmann, Atina, Jews, Germans and Allies: Close Encounters
Schneider, Peter, The Wall Jumper
Bauer, Karin (ed.), Everybody Talks About the Weather… We Don’t. The Writings of Ulrike Meinhof

In addition, there will be some reading of short texts made available on blackboard or through the library.

Documents:
We will use documents from the collection “German History in Documents and Images,” made available online by the German Historical Institute, Washington. Please familiarize yourself with the site: http://germanhistorydocs.ghi-dc.org/home.cfm - it is a great resource.

Course Requirements:

Discussions: This course is a seminar. This means that extensive student participation will be expected and encouraged. It will count for 25% of the course grade. Although the professor will present short lectures from time to time, the core of the course will be formed by our class discussions of the reading assignments. Participation is not the same as attendance. Students should come to class each week prepared to discuss the reading specified on the syllabus. The professor will call on students who do not contribute voluntarily.

Research Paper: Each student will submit a 13-15-page paper at the end of the semester. Your topic needs to be approved in advance by the professor, and we will set aside time both inside and outside of class to make sure that there has been sufficient consultation. All students have to submit a project description and a bibliography.

Project Description and Bibliography: You will need to submit a proposal for the project on which you would like to work in this course. The proposal should consist of about two pages of narrative text, describing the main focus and questions of the project. In addition, each proposal must contain a bibliography of at least ten titles.

Presentations: The final meetings of the semester will be devoted to oral presentations about your papers. Each student will present for 10 minutes, to be followed by questions and discussion. We will have four sessions dedicated to presentations, and individual slots for presentations will be determined by lottery.
Book Review: Your review will address the theme and the main arguments of the book, provide an idea how the argument is developed and supported, it will explain why and how the book relates to your research project, and will finish with your assessment of the book (1,200-1,500 words).

Grade Components:
Participation: 25%
Research paper: 35%
Project description and bibliography: 10%
Book review: 20%
Presentation: 10%

Overall grade calculation: All grades in this course are letter grades, i.e. the grades that you will receive on all of the assignments will range from A+ to F. The overall final grade for the course will be calculated on the basis of the numerical value of each letter grade. These are as follows: A+/A = 4.0, A- = 3.67, B+ = 3.33, B = 3.00, B- = 2.67, C+ = 2.33, C = 2.00, C- = 1.67, D+ = 1.33 D = 1.00, D- = 0.67, F = 0.00.

Failure to complete any of the above assignments may result in the student receiving a failing grade for the course. All students are expected to complete assignments at the designated time. Extensions will only be granted for students who can certify medical necessity, accident, documented family emergency or college-authorized activity. All written work must demonstrate competency in the English language in order to be considered acceptable and receive a passing grade.

Blackboard: Handouts, reading materials, reminders about deadlines, etc. will be posted on Blackboard. It is your responsibility to familiarize yourself with the Blackboard system and to make sure that you have access to it.

Attendance: Attendance is required and will be monitored. Students must explain absences. If you know in advance that you will have to miss a class for a legitimate reason (e.g., family emergency, medical situation, job interview), be sure to advise me. Unexcused absences will result in a lower class participation grade. If you have missed a class, it is your responsibility to catch up on the material covered during that class period.

Religious Holidays: Students have the right to practice the religion of their choice. Each semester students should submit in writing to their instructors, by the end of the second full week of classes, their documented religious holiday schedule for the semester. Faculty must permit students who miss work for the purpose of religious observance to make up this work.

Classroom Etiquette:
Faculty have received the following guidelines from the Dean's Office of the College of Arts and Sciences.
Classroom Conduct
Students enrolled in Arts and Sciences courses are expected to follow the following guidelines for behavior in class.

1. Students are expected to attend and be prepared for all regularly scheduled classes.
2. Students are expected to arrive on time and stay in class until the class period ends. If a student knows in advance that he or she will need to leave early, the faculty member should be notified before the class period begins.
3. Students are expected to treat faculty and fellow students with respect. For example, students must not disrupt the class by ostentatiously not paying attention or by leaving and reentering the classroom during the class period. Actions which distract the class from the work at hand are not acceptable. It is expected that students will pay respectful attention to comments made by the lecturer and by fellow students.

Behavior that departs from these guidelines as well as any additional guidelines specific to the individual course is not acceptable and may be cause for disciplinary action.

Specifically, I would like to draw your attention to the following points:
All cell phones must be switched off before the beginning of class. Students are expected to refrain from chatting during class. Laptops are only permitted to take notes – students must not surf the internet or do their email during class. Classes must not be taped.

ADA:
UVM, through its Student Accessibility Services (SAS) office, provides accommodation, consultation, collaboration, and education support service to students with disabilities. To contact the SAS office, go to http://www.uvm.edu/access/ or e-mail them at access@uvm.edu. If you need specific accommodations in this class, please provide me with a letter from the SAS office as early as possible so that we can make appropriate arrangements (at least 2 weeks prior to any exam or assignment). Please bear in mind that accommodations are not made retroactively. Students with disabilities are encouraged to contact me for a confidential discussion of their individual needs for academic accommodation.

Academic Honesty:
All work must abide by the University’s Code of Academic Integrity, found on the website of the Center for Student Ethics and Standards: http://www.uvm.edu/sconduct/?Page=students.html&SM=menu-student.html
All students are responsible for understanding and adhering to this policy. Academic dishonesty and misrepresentation will not be tolerated.

Changes to the Syllabus and Week-to-Week Reading Assignments:
This syllabus is subject to additions and changes that will be announced in class and on blackboard. Handouts, documents, and short articles to read may be assigned on a week-to-week basis. You are responsible for being aware of such changes regardless of whether you were in class or not on the days that they were announced. Feel free to talk to me if you have questions about a day you may have missed.

It may prove impossible to cover all the themes outlined in the schedule below. Sometimes, some issues require more discussion than originally envisaged, and a certain flexibility to make changes is necessary.

Course Outline

Research projects: round table discussion in class – come prepared to talk about your ideas. It is NOT expected that you will have settled on a topic by this point in the semester, but you can share with the class a topic that strike you as worthwhile. We will all discuss them together. It would be helpful if you would have a look at some of the assigned reading that will be due later in the semester, as well as the suggested reading section of the syllabus. Start thinking about a book for your book review. Ideally, the book that you choose for your book review will be relevant for your research paper. You are encouraged to consult with the professor about the topic of your research paper in advance of the class, either in person or via e-mail. (But please do not wait until the day before class!)
